

the 1990s, the number of people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia has increased in the United Kingdom (Meltzer 1997). The prevalence of schizophrenia in the United Kingdom is estimated to be 1.2% (Meltzer 1997).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The United Kingdom has a number of government departments and agencies that are responsible for the care of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health is responsible for the overall policy and strategy for mental health care. The Department of Social Security is responsible for the provision of social security benefits to people with mental health problems. The Department of the Environment is responsible for the provision of housing and other services to people with mental health problems.

The National Health Service (NHS) is responsible for the provision of mental health services. The NHS is a public body that is funded by the government. The NHS is responsible for the provision of a wide range of services, including mental health services. The NHS is also responsible for the provision of social care services to people with mental health problems.

The Mental Health Act 1983 is the primary legislation governing the care of people with mental health problems in the United Kingdom. The Act sets out the principles and objectives of mental health care. The Act also sets out the powers of the courts and the powers of the Secretary of State.

The Mental Health Act 1983 has been amended a number of times. The most recent amendments were made by the Mental Health Act 2003. The 2003 Act introduced a number of changes to the 1983 Act, including the introduction of a new system of compulsory treatment orders (CTOs).

The CTOs are a new type of order that allows the courts to require a person with a mental health problem to receive treatment. The CTOs are designed to protect the public and to ensure that people with mental health problems receive the treatment they need.

The CTOs are a controversial issue. Some people believe that the CTOs are a necessary and effective way of ensuring that people with mental health problems receive the treatment they need. Others believe that the CTOs are a violation of the rights of people with mental health problems.

The purpose of this paper is to explore the views of people with mental health problems on the CTOs. The paper will discuss the experiences of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs. The paper will also discuss the views of people with mental health problems on the CTOs.

The paper is organized as follows. The first section will discuss the background to the CTOs. The second section will discuss the experiences of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs. The third section will discuss the views of people with mental health problems on the CTOs. The fourth section will discuss the conclusions of the paper.

The paper is based on data from a survey of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs. The survey was conducted in 2004. The survey included 100 people with mental health problems who had been subject to CTOs. The survey was conducted by the authors.

The survey included a number of questions about the experiences of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs. The questions included questions about the reasons for the CTOs, the treatment received, and the views of people with mental health problems on the CTOs.

The survey found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs because of a risk to the public. The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs for a period of more than 12 months.

The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs because of a risk to themselves. The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs for a period of more than 12 months.

The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs because of a risk to others. The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs for a period of more than 12 months.

The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs because of a risk to the public. The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs for a period of more than 12 months.

The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs because of a risk to themselves. The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs for a period of more than 12 months.

The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs because of a risk to others. The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs for a period of more than 12 months.

The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs because of a risk to the public. The survey also found that the majority of people with mental health problems who have been subject to CTOs were subject to CTOs for a period of more than 12 months.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 2000). The prevalence of mental health problems in the UK is estimated to be 10% (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The UK Government has introduced legislation to protect the rights of people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Act 1983, Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, Disability Discrimination Act 1995). The UK Government has also introduced measures to improve the support and services available to people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The UK Government has introduced legislation to protect the rights of people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Act 1983, Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, Disability Discrimination Act 1995). The UK Government has also introduced measures to improve the support and services available to people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The UK Government has introduced legislation to protect the rights of people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Act 1983, Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, Disability Discrimination Act 1995). The UK Government has also introduced measures to improve the support and services available to people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The UK Government has introduced legislation to protect the rights of people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Act 1983, Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, Disability Discrimination Act 1995). The UK Government has also introduced measures to improve the support and services available to people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The UK Government has introduced legislation to protect the rights of people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Act 1983, Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, Disability Discrimination Act 1995). The UK Government has also introduced measures to improve the support and services available to people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The UK Government has introduced legislation to protect the rights of people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Act 1983, Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, Disability Discrimination Act 1995). The UK Government has also introduced measures to improve the support and services available to people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

